

CLAIMS

1. A method for detecting cancer in a subject comprising:
isolating nucleic acid from a saliva specimen taken from the subject, and
assaying the nucleic acid for a genetic mutation associated with cancer, wherein the presence of the mutation indicative of cancer in the subject.